Independent Socialist League.
On April 26, 1940, in New York, "leaders of the ousted faction of the Socialist Workers Party proclaimed the formation of a new revolutionary organization, the 'Workers Party of the United States, section of the Fourth International'" (cf. Labor action; a paper in the interests of labor. Preview number (May 1, 1940) p. 1). Convention with the Fourth International was dissolved in Nov. 1940. In May 1940 the Workers Party of the United States became the Independent Socialist League. In July 1957, the Political Committee announced the dissolution of the party and urged its members to join the Socialist Party-Social Democratic Federation.
